

THE REBEL LOAN

List of the English Victims.

POSITION OF THIS GOVERNMENT.

The Debt Will Not be Assumed.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Sept. 18, 1865.

Many of the holders of the Confederate Cotton Loan in England avoided the recent meeting in London, evidently for fear of an exposure of their individual complicity in the ridiculous transaction. As the London journals therefore seem to be at a loss to know who the happy speculators are, they will be enlightened by the following list of some of the British subjects who have thus invested, with an estimate of the losses sustained by them respectively:

Sir Henry de Rousham, Bart.	£150,000
Isaac Campbell & Co., of No. 71 Jermyn-st., London, Army Contractors.	150,000
Thomas Sterling, shipowner, No. 59 Mansfield House, Piccadilly, Liverpool.	100,000

The attitude of the United States Government on the subject is plainly set forth in the following official letter:

Mr. Seward to Mr. Adams.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18, 1865.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, Esq., &c.—Sir, I have an impression is understood to prevail in Europe, that among the English there is a disposition, that in the event of the restoration of peace in this country, this Government will assume the public debts of the insurgents, or, certainly, the particular debt referred to. It is believed, however, that no impression can be more erroneous. There is no likelihood that any part of that debt will be assumed or recognized by the United States Government. It is probable and believed, however, that by some arrangement with the public in England on this point, I am your obedient servant, WILLIAM H. Seward.

Mr. Seward to Mr. Adams.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18, 1865.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, Esq., &c.—Sir, I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your despatch No. 1,020, together with papers which contain an interlocutory decree, which has been issued by the Vice-Chancellor in the suit of the United States against Pringle and others, which was instituted for the recovery of a sum due to the United States, a copy of the Vice-Chancellor's decree for the interlocutory is found among the same papers. The Vice-Chancellor is understood to have affirmed the title of the United States to the property in question. It is well known that the Government is concerned, and that the combination of the United States are concerned, in this view of the subject. You will have proper time to give to the subject when you come to England. I am your obedient servant, WILLIAM H. Seward.
